A Call to All Mystics

In 2014, the Rosicrucian Order, AMORC published the fifth Rosicrucian manifesto in our Order’s august history – the Appellatio Fraternitatis Rosae Crucis. Appellatio means the call or the appeal. This document is a call to all mystics around the world.

Whereas the Fama Fraternitatis, published in 1614, was a call to the learned of Europe, the Appellatio is a call to everyone – to every Rosicrucian and every mystic, to reach out to every human being in order to transform our world. The sustainable future of our planet and our species calls for nothing less. We invite you to respond to this call.

The Appellatio focuses on three areas – Spirituality, Humanism, and Ecology or protecting the environment.

Here are some excerpts from this manifesto.

Answering the Call for Spirituality

...What is spirituality? In accordance with what we have said previously, it transcends religiosity. In other words, it is not limited to believing in a God and following a religious credo, no matter how respectable this may be. Instead, it consists of seeking the deeper meaning of existence and gradually awakening the best within ourselves.

The Appellatio continues:

The real question we can and should ask ourselves on the subject of God or the Divine is not, therefore, whether God exists or not, but in what manner does God intervene in the lives of human beings. In our view, God does so to the extent to which we respect the laws through which God appears in the universe, in nature, and in humanity itself. This means studying them, which Rosicrucians have always dedicated themselves to doing. You will note that this approach to God and the role God plays in our existence has a scientific connotation rather than a religious one.

Later it states:

We hope that a time will come when spirituality, as a quest for knowledge and wisdom, will become normal practice and will condition civic life. From then on, politics will become as one with philosophy and therefore be inspired by the “love of wisdom” as it was at the height of the Greek civilization. Let us recall that this was the cradle of democracy and was at the origin of the notion of the republic, among others. Let us also recall that the majority of its philosophers were spiritual people.

Answering the Call for Humanism

Article 10 of the “Rosicrucian Declaration of Human Duties” published by AMORC in September 2005, says: “It is each individual’s duty to consider the whole of humanity as his or her family and to behave in all circumstances and everywhere as a citizen of the world. This means making humanism the basis of his or her behavior and philosophy.”

It continues...

But what does “being a humanist” mean? In the first place, it involves considering all human beings to be blood brothers and sisters, and the differences between them to be purely superficial.
Throughout history, humans have demonstrated the capacity to accomplish extraordinary things when they call upon the most noble and ingenious sides of human nature. Whether it be in the fields of architecture, technology, literature, the sciences, the arts, or in relations between the citizens of a single country, they have demonstrated intelligence, creativity, sensitivity, solidarity, and fraternity. This observation is comforting in itself, because it confirms that human beings are inclined to do good and work toward the happiness of all. It is for this reason precisely that one must be a humanist and have faith in oneself.

Answering the Call for Protecting the Environment

The Appellatio states:

In our view, you cannot be a humanist without being an ecologist—a protector of the environment. How indeed can you want all human beings to be happy, without concerning yourself with the conservation of the planet on which they live? Yet each of us knows that it is in danger and that humanity is largely responsible for this: various types of pollution, the destruction of ecosystems, excessive deforestation, the massacre of animal species, etc.

Later it says:

Rosicrucians are not sweet-dreamers with the spiritual side of existence as their sole preoccupation. We are indeed mystics, in the etymological sense of the term, which means men and women who are interested in the study of the mysteries of life, but we know that it is here on Earth that we must establish the paradise that religions situate in the afterlife. To do so, humans must learn to wisely manage natural resources and the products they create, which is why it is necessary to ensure that all levels and aspects of the economy benefit all peoples and all their citizens equitably, out of respect for human dignity and for nature.

It continues:

For us, Earth is not only the planet on which human beings live. It is also the backdrop to their spiritual evolution and allows each one of them to be fulfilled as living souls. It has therefore both a terrestrial and a celestial vocation, which is what the wisest of thinkers and philosophers have taught through the ages, the world over. Until humanity recognizes this truth and acts accordingly, the materialism and individualism that currently prevail will gradually worsen, with all the consequential negative outcomes for itself and for nature. More than ever, there is an urgent need to reinstate the Ternary Humanity-Nature-Divine that is the basis of all esoteric traditions and that civilization itself should adopt.

Then it states:

As we all know, Earth is also home to a multitude of animals, some wild and others domesticated. They too possess a soul…

…there are no gaps or boundaries between nature’s kingdoms, for they are animated by the same Vital Force and are part of the same cosmic evolutionary process observed on our planet.

So Mote it Be!
